The International E-Learning Association (IELA) is dedicated to advancing the knowledge and practice of e-learning in the classroom and the workplace. With members hailing from every continent—and from the realms of business, industry, government, and academia—the IELA is a vibrant and diverse community of e-learning professionals, researchers, and students.

Ideas. Insights. Innovation.

Our members are the foremost thinkers and practitioners in e-learning today. They invent tools and methodologies, implement digital learning strategies in companies and universities, and teach the next generation of e-learning designers and developers. Better yet, these leaders share their expertise and experiences with the IELA community. You can read their latest article. Probe their minds during an online discussion. Or see examples of their work in our growing library of demos.

Connect. Collaborate. Create.

IELA makes it easy to connect with other e-learning enthusiasts.

Our international conferences focus on current e-learning themes, trends, and topics.

Our member directory can help you find colleagues with similar interests.

And our communications tools—discussion forums, networking tools, and video and photo uploads—will keep you up-to-date with your e-learning friends. When you use one of these IELA connections, there's a good chance you'll discover your next collaborator for a book, paper, or project.

Join IELA Today.

When you become an IELA member, you become part of the world's leading e-learning community.

You'll be connected to professionals who share your passion for e-learning and want to make a significant contribution to the field. You'll also be joining people who revel in a bit of esprit de corps.

We look forward to welcoming you.
