Dublin Institute of Technology is pleased to invite you to the 2015 Research in Engineering Education Symposium. This symposium follows on from the success of ICREE 2007 in Hawaii, USA; REES 2008 in Davos, Switzerland; REES 2009 in Palm Cove, Queensland, Australia; REES 2011 in Madrid, Spain; and REES 2013 in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.

Academics, researchers and decision makers interested in enhancing engineering education through scholarly and evidence-based practices should not miss the opportunity to attend this symposium in Dublin, Ireland. The key theme for REES 2015 is translating research into practice, and hence we are particularly looking for papers that describe education research studies which have impacted:

- Engineering teaching and learning practices
- Engineering curricula
- Education policy
- Administrative practices

REES 2015 will include sessions that focus on sociotechnical aspects of engineering education and hence include topics such as ethics, sustainability, STS and engineering practice. Another theme of the conference will be research design with a particular focus on the following:

- Ensuring rigour in engineering education research
- Design-based research
- Qualitative research
- Emerging methodologies
- Collaborative research projects

Selected REES 2015 papers will be chosen for publication in a Special Issue of the European Journal of Engineering Education.
